Antique Original White Painted Bench With Flowers

This delightful bench makes one think of a cozy cottage or beach house, with the original white painted finish accented by blue panels of quaint tulips and other flowers. It shows much distress through the many years of use, including multiple areas where paint has been worn or scraped off and a long age related separation of wood that appears along the front. The bench has recently been restored, so all is strong, functional and ready to use and enjoy. The age-related distress adds to the primitive charm of this delightful bench and creates its vintage appeal.
