Pair Antique Original Brown Painted Barn Doors, Good for Sliding Doors

This pair of original brown painted doors have the weathered, aged appeal that create a unique focal point as interior sliding doors in today's modern home. Notice the upper panels have diagonal planks while the lower section has vertical planks of wood. Style elements such as this were a traditional way to create visual appeal in a simple farmhouse or barn of the mid-1800's throughout Europe. Please examine the photos to understand the age related wear, distress, scrapes, cracks, separation of planks, replacement lower panel to left door and wear on lower right door, different colors along the backside, etc. All of this distress combine to create the authentic vintage look of this pair of doors. They are being sold in as is, used condition how we found them in Europe.
