Pair, Original Blue Painted Antique Doors With Decorative Iron Flowers and Scroll work

This pair of antique doors is a special find. The captivating original blue paint has softened gently over the years while the fascinating iron scroll work with floral embellishments adds a romantic flair. While minor cracks are visible, the original pressed glass is still in place behind the iron work. Carved paneling above and below the central panel finish the look of these tall (over 8') doors. The many cracks, chips, scratches and age related separation are expected in well used doors of this age and add to their authentic vintage appeal. This pair of tall original blue painted doors are being sold in as is, used condition as we found them in Europe, allowing the buyer to customize in any way they choose.
